Costs

Dutch insurance companies will reimburse some or all of the cost of the psychotherapy as part of the "basis verzekering". My fee is based on the scheduled fee decreed by the NZA (Dutch Health Authority) and is dependant on a DBC (diagnostic treatment code) which actually charges based on the number of minutes used in the treatment. You will receive a paper invoice after one year of therapy or when the treatment is concluded. I expect you to pay the invoice in full, regardless of the amount reimbursed by your insurance. I urge you to investigate this financial matter before we begin sessions. I have no contracts with insurance companies.

If for any reason you would prefer to pay for your own session, the fee for 45 minutes is €140.

Cancelling a session

You can change the session time, or cancel a session up to 48 hours before the time planned. You can do this per email kate@katenobbs.com or by calling +31 (0)624824068. However, if you cancel a session within 48 hours of the session, or forget to arrive, you will be charged for the cost of the session. The cost is €140.

Ethical code

The psychologist is a member of the Nederlands Institute of Psychologen and holds to their ethical code.

Confidentiality

All the information you share will be treated with the strictest confidentiality. Without your written permission information about you cannot be shared with any third party. Your huisarts will receive a letter informing him or her of the commencement of psychotherapy. On conclusion of the therapy a letter will also be sent informing the huisarts of that. If you would prefer that there were no letters sent, please let me know.
